Old town area of Takayama

The town still stands on the east side of the Miyagawa River flowing through Takayama, and in the middle of it is Sanmachi, where Edo period houses remain. The rich atmosphere of Takayama castle town still lingers, and you can see sake breweries and merchants' houses with latticed bay windows standing in a row. This district was designated an area of historical significance by the Japanese Government.

Historic village of Shirakawa-go

Shirakawa-go's Gassho-Zukuri Village was registered as a UNESCO World Heritage Site in December 1995. Once there were an estimated 300 gassho style buildings in Shirakawa-go, of which only 114 remain. The oldest of these is said to be about three centuries old and is still in daily use.
